BREST

History

Brest was built by the Romans in 250 AD. As one of the main French harbours of the 18th century, Brest hosted one of the largest French forced working camps, which was dedicated to strengthen the French Navy. The camp was closed in 1858.

During the Second World War, the city was razed to the ground by the British and American coalition as part of their plan to regain control of the French territory. Over the years, Brest managed to overcome its conflicted history to become a successful, dynamic and modern middle sized city.

A coastal city

Brest is known as one of the main harbours of the French Atlantic coast. Thanks to its strategic location, it hosts the second biggest French military port. It is also equipped with a commercial port, a fishing port and two marinas. Altogether, the city of Brest, which gathers 25,000 ocean related jobs, is considered as the European capital for marine sciences and technologies.

Brest is famous nationwide for its expertise in the field of military and civil ship repair. Moreover, its main marina, which is known as the best port of call of the French Atlantic coast, welcomes a dozen cruise liners a year. Finally, it has hosted the departures and arrivals of numerous sailing races such as the Jules Verne Trophy, and many sailing world records were established in the port of Brest.

Brittany's second metropolitan area

Brest is located in the North-Western part of France. With a population of around 200,000 inhabitants, it is the second largest metropolitan area of Brittany. In order to maintain Brest's current status on the national level, the city's governance has implemented a number of measures which aim at diversifying Brest's strategic assets, as well as promoting innovation. Its expertise in the area of innovative technologies is recognized nationwide, and 25,000 people are employed in this field.

Moreover, Brest's higher education institutions also contribute to its attractiveness by providing companies with a highly qualified workforce.

UNIVERSITE DE BRETAGNE OCCIDENTALE

One of the main Breton higher education institutions

The Université de Bretagne Occidentale was created in 1971. Nowadays, it provides education to about 23,000 students every year, among which 12,970 Bachelor's degree students, 4,500 Master's degree students and 1,520 PhD students. The University employs 2,250 workers, including academic, technical and administrative staff. It offers a wide range of studies such as humanities, social sciences, earth sciences, engineering, etc. The University also contributes to Brest's attractiveness thanks to the quality of its education and research activities, particularly in the field of marine sciences.

An internationalised university

UBO is an internationally-oriented University, which focuses on promoting mobility abroad for its students and staff members. Indeed, it belongs to numerous European and international networks and it has established more than 400 bilateral agreements worldwide. Each year, 1000 of its students participate in a mobility abroad, while the University welcomes 1,700 foreign students. Moreover, about 350 staff members (both academic and non-academic) take part in international professional exchanges.

An important player in the local economy

As one of the main Breton higher education institutions, UBO strongly contributes to Brittany's attractiveness throughout the country. Moreover, the University generates 4,000 direct and indirect jobs. Lastly, UBO works hand in hand with local companies in order to prepare its students for their future careers in the best possible way.

PRACTICAL INFORMATION

How to reach the city center and the hotel?

From the airport: catch a shuttle to the tramway terminus station (porte de Guipavas), and then take the tramway until downtown, the train station is 5-10 minutes walking, from main hotels. The ticket costs 1.70€ and can be bought in the shuttle.

Shuttle timetable:

- Hotel Mercure, around 90€ the night: <https://all.accor.com/hotel/A4A5/index.fr.shtml>

Downtown Transportation

To reach the Humanity Faculty or the Pole Numerique, we advise you to walk, the faculty is very close to the city center and the hotels (respectively 5 min for Humanity Faculty / 15 min for the Pole Numerique).

You could take public transportation (bus 01-19-77, tramway – see map below) or taxi 0298 801 801.

Weather

Brittany has a temperate maritime weather: winters are cool and rainy while summers are warm and wet. According to a common saying, here in Brittany you can experience all four seasons on any given day. Since scattered showers are usually followed by spells of sunshine, it is important to be properly equipped and, because of the wind, coats are far more appropriate than umbrellas. However, cloudless days are not uncommon so we recommend packing all sorts of clothes.
